FRIGHTFUL,

Twenty-four Men Killed and Sixteen Will Die.

PARIS, June 25.—Twenty-four men were killed and sixteen entombed alive to-day by an explosion in a colliery in Rochamp.

THOMAS M'TIGUE,

A Lake Township Farmer, Killed by His Horses While on a Spree.

Special to THE SENTINEL.

ARCOLA, July 22.—Last night Thomas McTigue, a farmer living three miles north of this place, came to town, became intoxicated while here and started to drive home in a heavy two-horse wagon. He was unable to control the horses, driving through fields and woods wherever the horses could be got through gates and over fences. When about two miles from town the horses tried to cross a deep ditch and the horses, wagon and occupant were thrown in a confused mass into it. The horses were only slightly injured and extricated themselves, but McTigue was badly injured, and being unable to free himself from beneath the wagon, died some time during the night. He was found early this morning by passers by. McTigue was a married man and leaves a wife and two children.

[Mr. McTigue is well known and was in Fort Wayne yesterday and has relatives in this city.]—ED. SENTINEL.

THEY FELL

With a Scaffold and Were Hurt.

FOREST, O., June 25.—George Martin, James Marshall and Father Steiman were thrown to the floor of the Methodist church this morning by the sudden falling of the scaffold upon which they were at work repairing the damage done by the recent storm. George Martin was fatally injured. Father Steiman's injuries are severe, but Marshall escaped with but a slight hurt.

Socialists Arrested.

ROME, June 25.—Eight socialist leaders, some of whom were candidates at the late elections, have been arrested in Milan on the charge of inciting a revolt. Many socialist have been arrested in other cities. Co-operative associations have been dissolved everywhere and a good impression has been produced thereby.

The Dow Liquor Law.

CINCINNATI, O., June 25.—The circuit court has reversed the decree of Judge Huston, of the common pleas, dismissing the suit against the auditor and treasurer, involving the validity of the Dow liquor law, and held that the former action of the common pleas in the case was correct. This is the case now in the supreme court to test the Dow law.

Big Stables Burned.

ERIE, Pa., June 25.—The immense ring barn covering Congressman Wm. L. Scott's eighth of a mile track, burned last evening. There were in the barn the running stallions Kattanka, Algerine and Wanderer, but it is thought they are not fatally burned. The barn cost $12,000.

A Convict Shot.

IONIA, Mich., June 25.—Frank Wenlan, an inmate of the state house of correction, under sentence for larceny, was shot while attempting to escape yesterday and will die. His time would have expired in about a month

IN DISGUISE.

A French Count Dies Leaving $100,000.

NEW ORLEANS, June 25.—A special from Carnicro to the Picayune says: "Louis Perdrimat, a native of France, who has resided here for the past six years, carrying on a small mercantile business committed suicide Wednesday night bp swallowing laudanum. It was generally supposed here that he was possessed of but moderate means, but after his death it was discovered he left a will bequeathing $100,000 to two daughters in France. In his last writing he stated his full name was Count De Chattelbres DeUlsee."

SENATOR PAYNE

The Senate Committee Uphold Him.

WASHINGTON, June 25.—The senate committee on privileges and elections held a short meeting this morning and voted to report adversely to any investigation of the charges of bribery in connection with the election of Senator Payne. A majority of the committee think there is not sufficient evidence to show that money was used in the election and are very confident it was not in any way affected by improper means. There will be a minority report in favor of an investigation. It is said that only Frye will sign the minority report and that Senators Teller, Evarts, Logan, Saulsbury, Vance, Pugh and Eustice will sign the majority report.

The president and party left Washington about 1 o'clock to-day for a cruise down the Potomac and in the Chesapeake bay, on the steam yacht Corsai.

A Real Estate Swindler Dead,

CINCINNATI, June 25.—R. H. Lawton, Columbus, Kansas, was found dead in his bed at the Emery hotel to-day. He had been ill, but as he was under bond for land frauds in Kansas, suicide is credited.

MISS CLEVELAND

Will Edit a Chicago Magazine.

CHICAGO, June 25.—Rose Elizabeth Cleveland is to make Chicago her home, and take charge of the editorial department of "Literary Life."

Business Failures.

NEW YORK, June 25.—The business failures during the last seven days in the United States were 138, and in Canada twenty-nine.

SOMETHING WRONG.

The Rome City Assembly Criticised Severely.

"There is growing a strong feeling in this locality that the Island Park assembly is being run for the benefit of a chosen few, and that it has become a kind of a close corporation. The same corps of managers, the same salaried individuals, the same band, in fact from year to year everything is run for all it is worth by a select few. Fort Wayne, Corunna, Ligonier or Lagrange could either furnish a good band, but no opportunity is ever given to any other than those who the designing managers of the supposedly public institution are concerned with. There is one thing doubly sure that the citizens of this part of the county will soon withdraw their patronage from the concern if the present style of management is persisted in," says the Ligonier Banner.

The last Chautauqua meeting of the season will be held Monday evening, June 28, at the residence of Mr. F. W. Keil, 145 West Superior street. Every member in town is especially invited.

The Wabash shops will be closed today and to-morrow.

Peter Schenck had Adam Kramer arrested for provoke.

City Clerk Rockhill and Prof. W. F. Heath go east to-night on a trip for health. They will stay on the sea shore.

The jury in the case of Hon. Hugh Daugherty, administrator, vs. Philo Rogers, came in this afternoon with a verdict for the defense. Some $7,600 was involved and the case came from Bluffton. Rogers was given the amount named by Amos Curry and Mr. Daugherty sought to recover it for the estate.

Mr. Joe Cope is temporarily assistant clerk in the superior court.

ONCE MORE.

Assessor Slater Ordered to Make a New Assessment in Wayne Township.

The board of equalization sent a committee to Bloomingdale yesterday and found matters so complicated in the Ninth ward as to necessitate another assessment and this order was issued at noon:

"It appearing to the satisfaction of this board that the assessment of Wayne township, as made by John Slater, the assessor for said township, is generally so unequal as to render equalization of the same impracticable, it is therefore ordered that said assessment so made by John Slater, the assessor, be and the same is hereby set aside, and said John Slater is ordered to make a new assessment of the property of said township to be assessed by him and make due return thereof as provided by law."

Only a portion of the Ninth ward is affected, and after two months notice is given Mr. Slater can remedy the valuation quickly. The change occurs at some expense to the county and taxpayers.

Literature and English Lords.

It is the fashion to say that in these day the barriers of rank are broken down, that literary reputation is a social passport, and genius opens all doors; that the aristocracy itself has entered the lists, and recognized the equality of poets and philosophers with its highest members. But nothing can be more fallacious than this opinion. The lords open their doors to men and women of parts, it is true, but the purpose is to amuse themselves, not to do honor to literature. In old times they had their jesters and their bards to while away the time or to chronicle their deeds. Froissart and Ben Jonson were little more in their eyes. So the queen still keeps a poet laureate to celebrate the births and marriages of her progeny; and duchesses have authors and actors at their parties to entertain their guests, as they have music and ice cream.

The geniuses would like to believe, because they are sometimes invited to dinner, or even to a country house, that the feeling of the aristocracy is changed; but let one of them ask to marry the daughter of a duke, and he will discover how wide is the gulf that separates them. Let him presume in any way too far upon the notice that he thinks is a friendship, and he will be dropped with as little ceremony as if his lordship were dismissing a footman. The people of letters are admitted or invited to-day and forgotten or ignored to-morrow. They may be in society for a while, they are never of it; and if they no longer wait in the ante-room, as Johnson did at Chesterfield house, they must make themselves either serviceable or agreeable if they expect to stay up-stairs. They know this very well, though they don't always tell it, and the more dignified keep aloof from the great world.—Adam Badeaw's Letter.

An Altogether Unreliable Moon.

Mr. Hale, the astronomer, writes that in observing the planet Jupiter with a 6-inch reflector, he saw that but three of the moons were visible, a fact confirmed by others who had come to look into the telescope. They were advised to wait until the fourth moon appeared from behind the planet and after an hour the fourth moon did appear—coming out clear from Jupiter's disk, so clearly as to leave a place of separation between the planet and the moon. On looking at it again, perhaps twenty minutes later, what was the astronomer's surprise to find that this fourth moon had again disappeared! He and the others present repeatedly looked for it, but it had disappeared behind the planet and did not again emerge for perhaps twenty minutes to half an hour. This is a surprising case. One of Jupiter's satellites has occasionally been seen by other astronomers to "go back," seemingly, behind the planet, after once partially emerging, but has it ever been seen to go back as it did in this case after emerging entirely? Of course it is an optical effect which deceives one by atmospheric laws—perhaps the action of light in Jupiter's own atmosphere. But Mr. Hale's observation seems to have been a curious one.—Hartford Times.

A Native Nevada Sugar Plant.

About the lakes is found growing an abundance of wild cane resembling the cane of the brakes in the southern states, but more slender. Of this cane the Indians make great use. Of it are formed the floats used in buoying the trot lines set for fish far out in the big lake. Of the small canes they make the shafts of their arrows, and by pounding the green stalks between rocks and twisting a bunch as a skein of yarn or a rope would be twisted they wring out a large amount of sweet juice. This sap is caught in their water-tight baskets and reduced, by the use of heated stones, to a sort of inferior molasses, which, in their language, is called "pehapee," sugar. As the stalks of this wild cane begin to dry or ripen, small nodules or dry white sugar are formed about the joints. This natural sugar is gathered by the Indian women and children. If cultivated, this native cane might prove valuable.—Nevada Cor. New York Sun.

A FIGHT!

At The Scene of The Switchmens Strike.

Imported Men and the Police are Attacked by the Strikers at Chicago This Morning.

A Freight Train is Ditched and Bad Temper Urges the Men to Fight.

THE STRIKE.

Trouble Inaugurated by Switchmen To-day.

CHICAGO, June 25.—A carload of switchmen reached Chicago about midnight from Toledo, and it was thought they would be put to work at 9 o'clock. All the imported switchmen were taken to Forty-third street in charge of Superintendent Amsden. They remained in the car and had not up to 9:30 o'clock been expostulated with by the strikers. The imported men number about twenty-five, and include many of those brought to Chicago during the late strike. Shortly before 10 o'clock the officials, with the assistance of the police, succeeded in attaching an engine and caboose to a waiting freight train.

Beyond the expostulations of the crowd no trouble was experienced until after the caboose was attached to the train. The crowd then rushed for the police and turned the switches in spite of the latter. The police had their clubs drawn and used them in a few instances, but made no successful resistance. A portion of the crowd surged toward the train which had commenced to move out, but which passing upon open switches was thrown from the track, the engine and all the cars being derailed. To complete the wreck its coupling pins were withdrawn and thrown away.

The police succeeded in making two arrests. The excitement is still very great. The railway officials are now endeavoring to remove the wreck, and until that has been accomplished no further efforts to move the cars will be probable. One of the men arrested is a member of the executive committee of the Switchmen's union. The temper of the crowd is still very ugly.

The general managers of all the roads entering Chicago have assured President Newell that they would require their men to handle Lake Shore cars as well as those of other roads.

3:30 p. m.—Some of the imported switchmen were attacked by strikers shortly after noon and several were injured. It is stated a number have refused to work owing to the fear of violence.

ST. LOUIS, June 25.—During the trial this morning of Judge Advocate McGary, of the Knights of Labor, and several other of the Missouri Pacific employes who participated in the strike, charged with conspiracy, an alteration arose between the former and Prosecuting Attorney McDonald. The judge advocate was defending his own case. He was interrupted by McDonald, and hot words followed, succeeded by blows. McGary was fined $25.

A NEW PHONOGRAPH PERFECTED.

An Intrument To Be Used During Court Trials.

Some electricians in this city have been at work for several months to perfect a phonograph which can be used with such accuracy as to be an aid in reporting with precision the proceedings of courts and public assemblies. It is said that a state of perfection has already been attained which will warrant the introduction of this instrument in courts of justice. When the phonograph is perfected it will be a great help to stenographic reporters in one way and a great rival and hindrance in another way. One of the machines can be taken into court, for instance, and all of the proceedings will be recorded by it. At the close of the day it can be taken to a room and gauged to talk at any rate of speed—at thirty words a minute, which can be writen out by an ordinary long-hand writer. If it is desired to get the proceedings transcribed as fast as they occur new cylinders are put in the phonograph as fast as the proceedings are written out. For instance, the long-hand writers can put in a cylinder and let it remain ten minutes, then take it out and put in another, and transfer the cylinder which has the proceedings upon it to another instrument, and it is made to repeat the proceedings with accuracy, and, at the expiration of its term, is replaced in the phonograph and the other cylinder taken from it, and so on.

One of the great difficulties the scientists have encountered is in securing the distinction of tone and voice. Heretofore the phonograph has not been sufficiently distinct in the pitch of the voice to make one voice distinguish itself from another if they are similar in volume and tone. It is believed, however, that the instrument will be perfected within a short time so that anyone who has heard a number of voices in a room can readily distinguish them from the sounds the phonograph will give out. It is the distinguishing of one voice from another that gives the names of the speakers. For instance, if the phonograph is used to record the proceedings of a legislature it will not, of course, have the names of the persons participating in debate, and the persons translating from the record of the phonograph will have to place the speakers by the tone of the voice.

It is said that some of the official reporters intend trying the phonograph within a short time and determining how it will work in public debates. In event it fails they will have the proceedings by the usual methods and no risk will be run. When the phonograph is perfected the stenographers intended to use it in their work as a safeguard. By its assistance they will be enabled to have everything that is said in the room, and a number of persons speaking at one time and the rapidity of their speech will be no inconvenience, as the phonograph will catch everything that is said. It will be of more use as an amanuensis than anything else, enabling one to dictate any amount of correspondence to the machine and leaving it so that anyone can transcribe it, because the machine can be set to report the dictation at any rate of speed.—Washington Cor. Minneapolis Tribune.

A Remarkable Telephonic Invention.

Nature discribes, under the name of the "phonophore," a remarkable telephonic invention about to be introduced to public notice by Mr. Langdon Davies. The name is given to a contrivance which, while absolutely a non-conductor of continuous electric currents, still allows of the passage or transmission of rapidly alternating currents such as correspond to sounds in vocal and harmonic telephony. The "phonophore" consists essentially of two insulated wires laid side by side, twisted together and wound up upon a bobbin, one end of each wire being completely insulated. Regarded as a condenser, its capacity is very feeble indeed. Regarded as an induction coil neither the primary nor the secondary forms a closed circuit. Yet it transmits telephonic speech perfectly. It follows that Mr. Davies has solved the problem of telephoning on an open circuit.

But the real object of the invention is to enable telephonic messages, including both vocal and harmonic under that name, to be transmitted through the ordinary telegraph wires without interference with or from the telegraphic messages that are simultaneously passing through the wires. Mr. Davies has devised a whole series of new telephonic apparatus in which not only the induction-coils of the transmitters but also the bobbins of the receivers are replaced by open-circuit phonophone coils. Apart from its purely technical value, the new instrument presents several points of great scientific interest, and opens up sundry new problems to the mathematical physicist.—Scientific Journal.

Articles of West African Diet.

The chief diet is foofoo, or yams, an esculent not unlike an Irish potato. The drink is mimbo, or palm wine. The filthiness of the table and of the ground the chief's guest was extreme. Greasy debris of the various courses, and great splashes of the gushing mimbo disfigured the men, while on the right of each person the ground was wet with the repeated libations poured out to the ghosts of their fathers as every fresh bumper of mimbo was about to be drained, and with portions of the solids thrown to the ground as offerings to the same invisible participators. The meal consisted of roasted plantains and vegetable cheese, roasted yams in slices and fresh palm oil mixed up with bruised dried shrimps and salt and red pepper. The mid-day meal is usually the favorite dish foofoo. The small cross-legged table was brought up to the coach of the chief. No table cloth, knives, forks or plates are used.—Andrew Murray.

Successful Attempts at Balloon-Steerage.

An English writer remarks that the recent successful attempts at balloon-steerage in France have led many thoughtful persons to believe the day not to be far distant when we shall see balloons plying between England and the continent.—Exchange.

QUESTIONINGS.

I wonder when the spirit
Leaves the flesh and bone that bound it
To the passions of our planet
And the raptures of our race
If it sees its poor lost body
With the loving arms around it;
If it quivers with the kisses
On its poor and pallid face!

I wonder if it listens
To the praises of the pastor—
Hears him say the dead has risen
To the sunland of the soul—
While it knows the secret sinnings
Of the things that was its master
Rise with flaming swords to drive it
From the glory and the goal!

I wonder if it watches
Till it sees the dead forgotten—
Sees new friends usurp the favor
Of the hearts that were its own;
If it looks below the daisies,
Where the grave worms are begotten—
Where the eyeless skull is grinning
At a jest to us unknown!

I wonder if the truth is
That the spirit can remember
All its pains and all its pleasures,
All its terrors and its tears,
Stealing swiftly on its vivid
Summer visions, as November
Crashes down in storm and darkness
On the splendor of the years?

No, ah, no! Far better for us
That we die, and die forever—
That we slip into the shadows
And the silences eterne—
Than be hunted down and haunted
When the soul and sense dissever,
With the memories that mock us
In the lower life inferne!

—New York Mercury.

Some Points in Coffee-Roasting.

"It is a nice task to brown coffee just right," said a New York coffee-roaster the other day. "Nearly everybody browns coffee too much. It comes out burned instead of browned, although it is greatly to the interest of the wholesalers not to brown it too much on account of the loss of weight. When the berry is roasted until it becomes red, instead of chestnut colored, as it is customary, it preserves its maximum weight and aroma. One hundred pounds of berries roasted properly lose but fifteen pounds in weight. As usually roasted they lose twenty pounds. If roasted long enough the berry glazes over and turns dark brown. It loses a fourth of its weight in the process."

"Why does the grocer overroast his coffee, then?" was asked.

"The trade demands it. The coffee that is made from over-burned berries is black, and the flavor is rank. The popular taste is educated to choose black coffee, and would find the light-colored liquid made from the reddened berries rather insipid at first, and would refuse to buy enough to learn to admire the rich flavor of the reddened berries.—Detroit Free Press.

Why the Irish Like Green.

The early Celts worshipped the dawn and the sunrise. It is more than probable that the Irish preference of the color green, for their flag and their sashes, arose from a mistake among those who had lost a thorough knowledge of the old Irish language. The sun, in Irish, is called by a word pronounced like our word "green," and it is likely that the Irish fondness for that color arose from the word's exact likeness in sound to their word for the sun. In the same way, when we talk about greenhouses we think they are called so because the plants are kept green in them during the winter. Yet it is far more probable that "green," here, is the Irish word meaning, not the color, but the sun; because greenhouses are built so as to catch the sun's rays and store them up while hidden by clouds, as happens more than half the time in showery Ireland.—The Century.

Lake of the Persian Plateau.

The lake of Kapauta, in Khorassan, Persia, near the great salt desert, has an elevation of 4,300 feet above the sea. It is 80 miles long by 25 wide, and, though fed by the Ajisa river, 180 miles long, the Jayetu, 140 miles long, and the Tatu, 90 miles long, is yet fast drying up. Already its waters contain 25 per cent of saline substances. It contains six large islands, and several huge pyramidal rocks grouped near the center. The great salt desert in Khorassan has an elevation of 2,000 feet above the sea while the average elevation of the whole Persian plateau is 3,800 feet.—Chicago Herald.

A Pest Brought Over by Russians.

The Russian thistle, introduced by the Mennonite immigrants from Russia with their first importation of spring wheat, is reported to be spreading rapidly on new lands of Dakota and Minnesota, and threatens to become a troublesome intruder.—Chicago Journal.

Pineapple Cheese and Wine.

A great delicacy is Edam cheese and wine. The usual Edam cheese, or pineapple cheese will do, is opened by cutting the top off so as to serve as a lid, and then a little port or sherry wine is poured into a hole made by scooping out a dessert spoonful of the middle. This is left to stand and soak awhile, and afterwards, as fast as the cheese is used, more wine is poured in. If the cheese is an old one (and an Edam or pineapple cheese is not good for any purpose unless it be old), the wine will soak into it and take the place of the original moisture that has dried out. It will be impossible, until you taste it, to conceive the exquisite effect of the combination. It is eaten with water biscuit, which by the way are to be found on all bachelor tables this year, because they seem naturally to go with all sorts of drinkables and with all cheeses, salt or smoked meats and most sweets.—Detroit Free Press.

Salutary Effects of Water Drinking.

Those who have morbid conditions of the stomach and bowels, which do not so far impair the general vigor as to prevent attention being given to ordinary duties of life, can often use large draughts of water, especially in the morning, with manifest advantage. Obstinate constipation is thereby removed, the normal peristaltic motions of the bowels are restored, and the secretions may be vastly improved. We notice the salutary influence of water drinking upon many of those who resort to the so-called mineral springs which abound in the country. It is not necessary that these springs should hold abnormal quantities of salts of any kind to effect cures; it is only necessary that the water should be pure.—Exchange.

Political Difference Between Relatives.

It was a strange thing that at one time the anti-slavery champion in congress, John Quincy Adams, of Massachusetts, and the pro-slavery champion, Barnwell Rhett, of South Carolina, should have been the descendants of two brothers. One was descended from Thomas Smith, colonial governor of South Carolina, and the other from his brother, James Smith, who moved from the province of South Carolina to the province of Massachusetts.—Allanta Constitution.

Not Best to Stand Continuously.

A statesman who has a well-developed propensity for sitting, has defined standing as a combination of "the stagnation of rest with the fatigue of exercise," and considers it a very bad thing to stand continuously at any pursuit.—Chicago Times.

PARIS, June 25.—Twenty-four men were killed and sixteen entombed alive to-day by an explosion in a colliery in Rochamp.

THOMAN M'TIGUE,

A Lake Township Farmer, Killed by His Horses While on a Spree.

Special to THE SENTINEL.

ARCOLA, July 23.—Last night Thomas McTigue, a farmer living three miles north of this place, came to town, became intoxicated while here and started to drive home in a heavy two-horse wagon. He was unable to control the horses, driving through fields and woods wherever the horses could be got through gates and over fences. When about two miles from town the horses tried to cross a deep ditch and the horses, wagon and occupant were thrown in a confused mass into it. The horses were only slightly injured and extricated themselves, but McTigue was badly injured, and being unable to free himself from beneath the wagon, died some time during the night. He was found early this morning by passers by. McTigue was a married man and leaves a wife and two children.

[Mr. McTigue is well known and was in Fort Wayne yesterday and has relatives in this city.]—ED. SENTINEL.

ROME, June 25.—Eight socialist leaders, some of whom were candidates at the late elections, have been arrested in Milan on the charge of inciting a revolt. Many socialist have been arrested in other cities. Co-operative associations have been dissolved everywhere and a good impression has been produced thereby.

CINCINNATI, O., June 25.—The circuit court has reversed the decree of Judge Huston, of the common pleas, dismissing the suit against the auditor and treasurer, involving the validity of the Dow liquor law, and held that the former action of the common pleas in the case was correct. In his last writing he stated his full name was Count De Chattelbres DeUlsea."

SENATOR PAYNE

The Senate Committee Uphold Him.

WASHINGTON, June 25.—The senate committee on privileges and elections held a short meeting this morning and voted to report adversely to any investigation of the charges of bribery in connection with the election of Senator Payne. A majority of the committee think there is not sufficient evidence to show that money was used in the election and are very confident it was not in any way affected by improper means. There will be a minority report in favor of an investigation. It is said that only Frye will sign the minority report and that Senators Teller, Evarts, Logan, Sanlsbury, Vance, Pugh and Eustice will sign the majority report.

SOMETHING WRONG.

The Rome City Assembly Criticised Severely.

"There is growing a strong feeling in this locality that the Island Park assembly is being run for the benefit of a chosen few, and that it has become a kind of a close corporation. The same corps of managers, the same salaried individuals, the same band, in fact from year to year everything is run for all it is worth by a select few. Fort Wayne, Carnana, Ligonier or Lagrange could either furnish a good band, but no opportunity is ever given to any other than those who the designing managers of the supposedly public institution are concerned with. There is one thing doubly sure that the citizens of this part of the county will soon withdraw their patronage from the concern if the present style of management is persisted in," says the Ligonier Banner.

The last Chautauqua meeting of the season will be held Monday evening, June 28, at the residence of Mr. F. W. Keil, 145 West Superior street. Every member in town is especially invited.

Mr. Joe Cope is temporarily assistant clerk in the superior court.

Assessor Slater Ordered to Make a New Assessment in Wayne Township.

The board of equalization sent a committee to Bloomingdale yesterday and found matters so complicated in the Ninth ward as to necessitate another assessment and this order was issued at noon:

"It appearing to the satisfaction of this board that the assessment of Wayne township, as made by John Slater, the assessor for said township, is generally so unequal as to render equalization of the same impracticable, it is therefore ordered that said assessment so made by John Slater, the assessor, be and the same is hereby set aside, and said John Slater is ordered to make a new assessment of the property of said township to be assessed by him and make due return thereof as provided by law."

Only a portion of the Ninth ward is affected, and after two months notice is given Mr. Slater can remedy the valuation quickly. The change occurs at some expense to the county and taxpayers.

Literature and English Lords.

It is the fashion to say that in these day the barriers of rank are broken down, that literary reputation is a social passport, and genius opens all doors; that the aristocracy itself has entered the lists, and recognized the equality of poets and philosophers with its highest members. But nothing can be more fallacious than this opinion. The lords open their doors to men and women of parts, it is true, but the purpose is to amuse themselves, not to do honor to literature. In old times they had their jesters and their bards to while away the time or to chronicle their deeds. Froissart and Ben Jonson were little more in their eyes. So the queen still keeps a poet laureate to celebrate the births and marriages of her progeny; and duchesses have authors and actors at their parties to entertain their guests, as they have music and ice cream.

The geniuses would like to believe, because they are sometimes invited to dinner, or even to a country house, that the feeling of the aristocracy is changed; but let one of them ask to marry the daughter of a duke, and he will discover how wide is the gulf that separates them. Let him presume in any way too far upon the notice that he thinks is a friendship, and he will be dropped with as little ceremony as if his lordship were dismissing a footman. The people of letters are admitted or invited to-day and forgotten or ignored to-morrow. They may be in society for a while, they are never of it; and if they no longer wait in the ante-room, as Johnson did at Chesterfield house, they must make themselves either serviceable or agreeable if they expect to stay up-stairs. They know this very well, though they don't always tell it, and the more dignified keep aloof from the great world.—Adam Badeaw's Letter.

An Altogether Unreliable Moon.

Mr. Hale, the astronomer, writes that in observing the planet Jupiter with a 6-inch reflector, he saw that but three of the moons were visible, a fact confirmed by others who had come to look into the telescope. They were advised to wait until the fourth moon appeared from behind the planet and after an hour the fourth moon did appear—coming out clear from Jupiter's disk, so clearly as to leave a place of separation between the planet and the moon. On looking at it again, perhaps twenty minutes later, what was the astronomer's surprise to find that this fourth moon had again disappeared! He and the others present repeatedly looked for it, but it had disappeared behind the planet and did not again emerge for perhaps twenty minutes to half an hour. This is a surprising case. One of Jupiter's satellites has occasionally been seen by other astronomers to "go back," seemingly, behind the planet, after once partially emerging, but has it ever been seen to go back as it did in this case after emerging entirely? Of course it is an optical effect which deceives one by atmospheric laws—perhaps the action of light in Jupiter's own atmosphere. But Mr. Hale's observation seems to have been a curious one.—Hartford Times.

A Native Nevada Sugar Plant.

About the lakes is found growing an abundance of wild cane resembling the cane of the brakes in the southern states, but more slender. Of this cane the Indians make great use. Of it are formed the floats used in buoying the trot lines set for fish far out in the big lake. Of the small canes they make the shafts of their arrows, and by pounding the green stalks between rocks and twisting a bunch as a skein of yarn or a rope would be twisted they wring out a large amount of sweet juice. This sap is caught in their water-tight baskets and reduced, by the use of heated stones, to a sort of inferior molasses, which, in their language, is called "pohapco," sugar. As the stalks of this wild cane begin to dry or ripen, small nodules or dry white sugar are formed about the joints. This natural sugar is gathered by the Indian women and children. If cultivated, this native cane might prove valuable.—Nevada Cor. New York Sun.

A FIGHT!

At The Scene of The Switchmens Strike.

Imported Men and the Police are Attacked by the Strikers at Chicago This Morning.

A Freight Train is Ditched and Bad Temper Urges the Men to Fight.

THE STRIKE.

Trouble Inaugurated by Switchmen To-day.

CHICAGO, June 25.—A carload of switchmen reached Chicago about midnight from Toledo, and it was thought they would be put to work at 9 o'clock. All the imported switchmen were taken to Forty-third street in charge of Superintendent Amsden. They remained in the car and had not up to 9:30 o'clock been expostulated with by the strikers. The imported men number about twenty-five, and include many of those brought to Chicago during the late strike. Shortly before 10 o'clock the officials, with the assistance of the police, succeeded in attaching an engine and caboose to a waiting freight train.

Beyond the expostulations of the crowd no trouble was experienced until after the caboose was attached to the train. The crowd then rushed for the police and turned the switches in spite of the latter. The police had their clubs drawn and used them in a few instances, but made no successful resistance. A portion of the crowd surged toward the train which had commenced to move out, but which passing upon open switches was thrown from the track, the engine and all the cars being derailed. To complete the wreck its coupling pins were withdrawn and thrown away.

The police succeeded in making two arrests. The excitement is still very great. The railway officials are now endeavoring to remove the wreck, and until that has been accomplished no further efforts to move the cars will be probable. One of the men arrested is a member of the executive committee of the Switchmen's union. The temper of the crowd is still very ugly.

The general managers of all the roads entering Chicago have assured President Newell that they would require their men to handle Lake Shore cars as well as those of other roads.

3:30 p. m.—Some of the imported switchmen were attacked by strikers shortly after noon and several were injured. It is stated a number have refused to work owing to the fear of violence.

A FIGHT IN COURT.

ST. LOUIS, June 25.—During the trial this morning of Judge Advocate McGary, of the Knights of Labor, and several other of the Missouri Pacific employes who participated in the strike, charged with conspiracy, an altercation arose between the former and Prosecuting Attorney McDonald. The judge advocate was defending his own case. He was interrupted by McDonald, and hot words followed, succeeded by blows. McGary was fined $25.

The gas, gold and oil excitement at Lexington continues to be the main topic in that vicinity. Yesterday a Madisonian was at Husting's and Gedding's farms, on the boundary between Jefferson and Scott counties, and found many gold hunters prospecting for gold.

I will receive sealed proposals for the construction of the drainage of Little River and its tributaries up to 12 o'clock m., July 7, 1886, at the office of W. H. Goshorn, civil engineer of the city of Fort Wayne, Ind.

A NEW PHONOGRAPH PERFECTED.

An Instrument To Be Used During Court Trials.

Some electricians in this city have been at work for several months to perfect a phonograph which can be used with such accuracy as to be an aid in reporting with precision the proceedings of courts and public assemblies. It is said that a state of perfection has already been attained which will warrant the introduction of this instrument in courts of justice. When the phonograph is perfected it will be a great help to stenographic reporters in one way and a great rival and hindrance in another way. One of the machines can be taken into court, for instance, and all of the proceedings will be recorded by it. At the close of the day it can be taken to a room and gauged to talk at any rate of speed—at thirty words a minute, which can be written out by an ordinary long-hand writer. If it is desired to get the proceedings transcribed as fast as they occur new cylinders are put in the phonograph as fast as the proceedings are written out. For instance, the long-hand writers can put in a cylinder and let it remain ten minutes, then take it out and put in another, and transfer the cylinder which has the proceedings upon it to another instrument, and it is made to repeat the proceedings with accuracy, and, at the expiration of its term, is replaced in the phonograph and the other cylinder taken from it, and so on.

One of the great difficulties the scientists have encountered is in securing the distinction of tone and voice. Heretofore the phonograph has not been sufficiently distinct in the pitch of the voice to make one voice distinguish itself from another if they are similar in volume and tone. It is believed, however, that the instrument will be perfected within a short time so that anyone who has heard a number of voices in a room can readily distinguish them from the sounds the phonograph will give out. It is the distinguishing of one voice from another that gives the names of the speakers. For instance, if the phonograph is used to record the proceedings of a legislature it will not, of course, have the names of the persons participating in debate, and the persons translating from the record of the phonograph will have to place the speakers by the tone of the voice.

It is said that some of the official reporters intend trying the phonograph within a short time and determining how it will work in public debates. In event it fails they will have the proceedings by the usual methods and no risk will be run. When the phonograph is perfected the stenographers intended to use it in their work as a safeguard. By its assistance they will be enabled to have everything that is said in the room, and a number of persons speaking at one time and the rapidity of their speech will be no inconvenience, as the phonograph will catch everything that is said. It will be of more use as an amanuensis than anything else, enabling one to dictate any amount of correspondence to the machine and leaving it so that anyone can transcribe it, because the machine can be set to report the dictation at any rate of speed.—Washington Cor. Minneapolis Tribune.

A Remarkable Telephonic Invention.

Nature discribes, under the name of the "phonophore," a remarkable telephonic invention about to be introduced to public notice by Mr. Langdon Davies. The name is given to a contrivance which, while absolutely a non-conductor of continuous electric currents, still allows of the passage or transmission of rapidly alternating currents such as correspond to sounds in vocal and harmonic telephony. The "phonophore" consists essentially of two insulated wires laid side by side, twisted together and wound up upon a bobbin, one end of each wire being completely insulated. Regarded as a condenser, its capacity is very feeble indeed. Regarded as an induction coil neither the primary nor the secondary forms a closed circuit. Yet it transmits telephonic speech perfectly. It follows that Mr. Davies has solved the problem of telephoning on an open circuit.

But the real object of the invention is to enable telephonic messages, including both vocal and harmonic under that name, to be transmitted through the ordinary telegraph wires without interference with or from the telegraphic messages that are simultaneously passing through the wires. Mr. Davies has devised a whole series of new telephonic apparatus in which not only the induction-coils of the transmitters but also the bobbins of the receivers are replaced by open-circuit phonophone coils. Apart from its purely technical value, the new instrument presents several points of great scientific interest, and opens up sundry new problems to the mathematical physicist.—Scientific Journal.

Articles of West African Diet.

The chief diet is foofoo, or yams, an esculent not unlike an Irish potato. The drink is mimbo, or palm wine. The filthiness of the table and of the ground the chief's guest was extreme. Greasy debris of the various courses, and great splashes of the gushing mimbo disfigured the men, while on the right of each person the ground was wet with the repeated libations poured out to the ghosts of their fathers as every fresh bumper of mimbo was about to be drained, and with portions of the solids thrown to the ground as offerings to the same invisible participators. The meal consisted of roasted plantains and vegetable cheese, roasted yams in slices and fresh palm oil mixed up with bruised dried shrimps and salt and red pepper. The mid-day meal is usually the favorite dish foofoo. The small cross-legged table was brought up to the couch of the chief. No table cloth, knives, forks or plates are used.—Andrew Murray.

Successful Attempts at Balloon-Steerage.

An English writer remarks that the recent successful attempts at balloon-steerage in France have led many thoughtful persons to believe the day not to be far distant when we shall see balloons plying between England and the continent.—Exchange.

QUESTIONINGS.

I wonder when the spirit
Leaves the flesh and bone that bound it
To the passions of our planet
And the raptures of our race
If it sees its poor lost body
With the loving arms around it;
If it quivers with the kisses
On its poor and pallid face!

I wonder if it listens
To the praises of the pastor—
Hears him say the dead has risen
To the sunland of the soul—
While it knows the secret sinnings
Of the things that was its master
Rise with flaming swords to drive it
From the glory and the gem!

I wonder if it watches
Till it sees the dead forgotten—
Sees new friends usurp the favor
Of the hearts that were its own;
If it looks below the daisies,
Where the grave worms are begotten—
Where the eyeless skull is grinning
At a jest to us unknown!

I wonder if the truth is
That the spirit can remember
All its pains and all its pleasures,
All its terrors and its tears,
Stealing swiftly on its vivid
Summer visions, as November
Crashes down in storm and darkness
On the splendor of the years?

No, ah, no! Far better for us
That we die, and die forever—
That we slip into the shadows
And the silences eterne—
Than be hunted down and haunted
When the soul and sense dissever,
With the memories that mock us
In the lower life infernal!

—New York Mercury.

Some Points in Coffee-Roasting.

"It is a nice task to brown coffee just right," said a New York coffee-roaster the other day. "Nearly everybody browns coffee too much. It comes out burned instead of browned, although it is greatly to the interest of the wholesalers not to brown it too much on account of the loss of weight. When the berry is roasted until it becomes red, instead of chestnut colored, as it is customary, it preserves its maximum weight and aroma. One hundred pounds of berries roasted properly lose but fifteen pounds in weight. As usually roasted they lose twenty pounds. If roasted long enough the berry glazes over and turns dark brown. It loses a fourth of its weight in the process."

"Why does the grocer overroast his coffee, then?" was asked.

"The trade demands it. The coffee that is made from over-burned berries is black, and the flavor is rank. The popular taste is educated to choose black coffee, and would find the light-colored liquid made from the reddened berries rather insipid at first, and would refuse to buy enough to learn to admire the rich flavor of the reddened berries.—Detroit Free Press.

Why the Irish Like Green.

The early Celts worshipped the dawn and the sunrise. It is more than probable that the Irish preference of the color green, for their flag and their ashes, arose from a mistake among those who had lost a thorough knowledge of the old Irish language. The sun, in Irish, is called by a word pronounced like our word "green," and it is likely that the Irish fondness for that color arose from the word's exact likeness in sound to their word for the sun. In the same way, when we talk about greenhouses we think they are called so because the plants are kept green in them during the winter. Yet it is far more probable that "green," here, is the Irish word meaning, not the color, but the sun; because greenhouses are built so as to catch the sun's rays and store them up while hidden by clouds, as happens more than half the time in showery Ireland.—The Century.

Lake of the Persian Plateau.

The lake of Kapauta, in Khorassan, Persia, near the great salt desert, has an elevation of 4,300 feet above the sea. It is 80 miles long by 25 wide, and, though fed by the Ajisa river, 180 miles long, the Jayetu, 140 miles long, and the Tatu, 90 miles long, is yet fast drying up. Already its waters contain 25 per cent of saline substances. It contains six large islands, and several huge pyramidal rocks grouped near the center. The great salt desert in Khorassan has an elevation of 2,000 feet above the sea while the average elevation of the whole Persian plateau is 3,800 feet.—Chicago Herald.

A Pest Brought Over by Russians.

The Russian thistle, introduced by the Mennonite immigrants from Russia with their first importation of spring wheat, is reported to be spreading rapidly on new lands of Dakota and Minnesota, and threatens to become a troublesome intruder.—Chicago Journal.

Notice to Contractors.

Notice is hereby given that the board of directors of the Fort Wayne and Decatur gravel road will receive separate proposals for grading the road bed of said proposed gravel road and for gravveling the same, to be done according to the profile and specifications, which may be seen at the hardware store of Gruber & Gray, 364 Calhoun st cet, Fort Wayne. Pineapple Cheese and Wine.

A great delicacy is Edam cheese and wine. The usual Edam cheese, or pine apple cheese will do, is opened by cutting the top off so as to serve as a lid, and then a little port or sherry wine is poured into a hole made by scooping out a dessert spoonful of the middle. This is left to stand and soak awhile, and afterwards, as fast as the cheese is used, more wine is poured in. If the cheese is an old one (and an Edam or pineapple cheese is not good for any purpose unless it be old), the wine will soak into it and take the place of the original moisture that has dried out. It will be impossible, until you taste it, to conceive the exquisite effect of the combination. It is eaten with water biscuit, which by the way are to be found on all bachelor tables this year, because they seem naturally to go with all sorts of drinkables and with all cheeses, salt or smoked meats and most sweets.—Detroit Free Press.

Salutary Effects of Water Drinking.

Those who have morbid conditions of the stomach and bowels, which do not so far impair the general vigor as to prevent attention being given to ordinary duties of life, can often use large draughts of water, especially in the morning, with manifest advantage. Obstinate constipation is thereby removed, the normal peristaltic motions of the bowels are restored, and the secretions may be vastly improved. We notice the salutary influence of water drinking upon many of those who resort to the so-called mineral springs which abound in the country. It is not necessary that these springs should hold abnormal quantities of salts of any kind to effect cures; it is only necessary that the water should be pure.—Exchange.

Political Difference Between Relatives.

It was a strange thing that at one time the anti-slavery champion in congress, John Quincy Adams, of Massachusetts, and the pro-slavery champion, Barnwell Rhett, of South Carolina, should have been the descendants of two brothers. One was descended from Thomas Smith, colonial governor of South Carolina, and the other from his brother, James Smith, who moved from the province of South Carolina to the province of Massachusetts.—Atlanta Constitution.

Not Best to Stand Continuously.

A statesman who has a well-developed propensity for sitting, has defined standing as a combination of "the stagnation of rest with the fatigue of exercise," and considers it a very bad thing to stand continuously at any pursuit.—Chicago Times.

Tired, Languid, Dull

Exactly expresses the condition of thousands of people at this season. The depressing effects of warm weather and the weak condition of the body, can only be corrected by the use of a reliable tonic and blood purifier like Hood's Sarsaparilla. Why suffer longer when a remedy is so close at hand? Take Hood's Sarsaparilla now. It will give you untold wealth in health, strength and enery.

A silver watch has just been plowed up in a field near Richmond, which has been lost and has lain in the ground for twenty-three years. It can be put in running order with very little cost.

It is no more a luxury to buy Teas. When they were $1 and $2 per pound then of course the consumption of them was small, but now the price is so low that a good Tea can be bought at 30c per pound then they come within the reach of all.

We are unable to sell so low simply in consequence of our immense trade. At times we sell two and three chests daily, and buying direct of the importers and selling direct to the consumers, enables us to save our customers the profits of the jobber, speculator and wholesale merchant, which is at least 10 to 20 per pound.

The republicans who are electing Captain J. B. White on paper and voting Knights of Labor in "3,000 job lots" will be disappointed most decidedly.
